Relevance of curriculum in your job:

The important thing, that I liked the most about the Department of Botany especially, is having a stunning Botanical garden, where you'll find a great variety of almost every type of plants including medicinal plants. The Lab facilities are quite good, including the infrastructure for studies purposes.

Need any change in curriculum and syllabi?

Our syllabi has been designed in a way, that we can prepare ourself for the NET exams as well. It would have been great if 'Anatomy' had been included in our syllabus, as our department, in terms of location, is at a best and soothing place and has a large Botanical Garden.

Improvements in teaching and learning Process:

According to me, the Department of Botany has got the most kind, caring and intelligent teachers. They're always trying their best for us, support us and guide us everytime, we feel honored for having the teachers of Botany and for being their students.

As I am working in SBI, the degree of B.tech in electronics and communication will surely help me. If in future I ever work with SBI's technical team.

Need any change in curriculum and syllabi?

Please compose syllabi according to the need of today's corporate world.

Improvements in teaching and learning Process:

Please focus more on practical learning. Rather than making students cramming the things. Dept of ECE lacks good practical labs.

Any other suggestion

Please reduce your sky-reaching fee. The amount of fee taken from the students is colossal but university lacks some good infrastructure. Look at the dilapidated road from Rajouri to BGSBU. Etc.

Suggestions:

I joined BGSBU back in 2014 for Bachelor's program in Electronics and Communication Engineering. I personally had a wonderful experience there during my entire program. Most of the faculty members there were very sincere towards their job. Let me share some good encounters with some of the faculty there first.

(1) I did almost 8 courses for my master's program in IIT xyz and I can proudly say that the way Nisha Ma'am used to deliver her lectures was as good as any of the IIT Faculty does.

(2) There was a course on "Microprocessors-8085" and the instructor for the same was Mr. Haider sir. The course was delivered in such a nice way that I for the first time felt that I am really enrolled in any Engineering program.

(3) Another course was on "Power electronics" taught by Mr. Arshid sir. It was taught in such a way that I was at a time motivated to build my own inverter.

However, the distribution of the courses "Who teaches what this semester" was very uneven in most of the semesters. The faculty who has no expertise in a particular subject will take some random course and later on was not able to do justice with that course. One of the fundamental courses "Digital Communication" which itself is the half of the name of degree was totally murdered the way it was taught.

Some general points, I would like to point out:

Most of the faculty used to give the topics which they were not able to cover due to time constraints or any other reason as assignments and students were supposed to write some 5 to 6 pages of theory and then were graded.

Faculty there was very lazy to spend some time on setting up the GATE standard questions and some mini project related to course as assignments.

The input from most of the faculty side towards the minor and major projects was negligible. There were no weekly meetings for getting the updates from the students what they are working on due to which in last month of project submission, students have to outsource the projects and the codes. There was not a clear idea what is the expertise of a particular faculty. Some faculty will accept the project proposal from the students which is not even their domain. The faculty were too lenient towards the end Sem exams. Most of the questions used to get repeated and also unfortunately there hardly used to be any numerical type questions. Students were evaluated on the basis of filling max no of answer sheets. The novelty in the questions was lacking so as to match the GATE standards which translates to lack of expertise of that particular faculty setting up the questions.

MATLAB and python coding was a dream, none of the faculty used to give coding assignments.

To summarize I had mixed experience with the faculty there. Where most of the faculty were sincere but at the same time some of the faculty were not at all able to do justice with their positions.

Identification of the expertise of the faculty members should be done on priority basis and course allotment for particular semester should be done very carefully. Senior faculty members should take the core subjects rather than the easy ones offered. The standards of the textbooks, assignments, end sem exam should be state of art.

Also, if I am in the NIRF-xyz institute today, it is only because of my alma mater (BGSBU). I got enough motivation from the faculty particularly Mr. Abbas sir and Mr. Arshid Sir for preparing for the GATE exams. With minor changes in the curriculum, I am sure BGSBU will be counted in best institutions of the country.
